 - Top-down input is crucial: the macroeconomic cycle is a major driver of the portfolio's performance and the top-down view determines its average maturity and rating;
 - Bottom-up credit research focusing on default risk and a 12-month outlook for each bond drives issuer selection;
 - Relative-value analysis is used to select the securities with the best risk–return profiles.
- If necessary, overlay strategies are implemented to help meet the investment objective. They consist of liquid, risk-budgeted, fixed-income multi-strategies.
- Risk-management is carry out at all steps of the investment process with real-time monitoring of the portfolio positions.
