UBAM – US DOLLAR BOND

US government bond fund that can proactively diversify across fixed income segments

UBAM - US Dollar Bond provides investors with access to the US government bond market. The portfolio seeks to provide an attractive yield via an optimal allocation across fixed income segments and capital appreciation through curve and interest-rate strategies.

Key points

- US Treasuries have historically exhibited an attractive risk/return profile
- Macroeconomic-driven investment process that aims to optimise allocation across fixed income segments
- US government bond fund that can invest in high-quality credit to enhance returns when the macroeconomic view is positive for corporate bonds
- Fourteen-strong investment team with considerable expertise in interest rates and credit and ten years' average experience

Investment case

Government bonds form a significant part of balanced investment portfolios' asset allocations.

As well as providing attractive returns (they have averaged 5.8% per year since 1987 in the US), they have also demonstrated their ability to protect capital: the worst annual return for US Treasuries since 1987 was -3.7% (in 2009).

As a result of their attractive historic risk return profile, US government bonds make up a substantial proportion of balanced portfolios.

Fund concept

UBAM - US Dollar Bond consists of a core portfolio that invests primarily in USD-denominated government debt. It has the ability to diversify into quasi-government debt and high-grade credit, offering a premium to government bond yields, and it also uses liquid, risk-budgeted fixed income overlay strategies – primarily curve and interest-rate strategies – to enhance returns.
